Trust Administration

The weeks and months after the loss of a loved one is often filled with grief, and it can become even more difficult and complex when you're left to handle that person's last wishes.

It's not uncommon for people to select a trusted friend or family member to be the executor of their estate upon death, but this can become emotional or contentious. It's also a lot of work. From maintaining estate property to settling debts to keeping beneficiaries in the loop, being named an executor can be a tough job.

The good news? Goff Legal is here to help with trust administration. Tapping an expert to support this process can be a huge stress reliever and can help the executor navigate the trust administration process seamlessly. Here's how we can help:

- Real estate transfers
- Property tax analysis
- Beneficiary notifications
- Meeting the deadlines you don't know about
